THE RACETRACK.

WINTRY GALES BLOW AT AQUEDUCT.

ONE OF THE BLEAKEST SPOTS ON THE AT-LANTIC COAST.

Number thirteen is lucky at the track of the meens County Jockey Club, and added starters have been fortunate at this meeting. A few days dispatches contained some interesting facts from the annual report of the company which controls the gambling at Monte Carlo. This report made it clear that the profits from Monte Carlo cambling mounted to enormous figures in the fiscal year recently closed. It is a noteworthy coincidence that the revenues from the gambling practised on American racetracks also attained imposing totals A strange incident of the season at Mothe report of the Blanc company sayswas that number 35 came out seven times in sucession at one of the roulette tables. Such a series for one number is said to be unprecein the entire annals of roulette. But num her thirteen has come out three times already at this Aqueduct meeting, and perhaps it may come out several times more. Number thirteen was the winning number of L'Alouette and Gaze, both added starters on Monday last. Number thirteen was the number of W. C. Daly's Chenille, an added starter, and a winner in the last race yesterday Three added starters were successful on the first The victories of added starters are sometimes day. The victories is attacks of seasickness, especially as unpleasant as attacks of seasickness, especially when one of them carries the unpopular colors of Daly. When Chenille, at outside odds, crossed the line not a cheer was heard, and no expressions of joy were uttered. On the faces of the tators the general look suggested sentiments of dislike and contempt.

Aqueduct is icy. This is an Arctic April, and the North Pole breezes that are blowing on the Atlantic seem to concentrate themselves at Aqueduct and make it almost as frigorifical as Nova Zembla or Spitzbergen.

It was cold yesterday, bitter, bitter cold. And it No rain has fallen on Long Island for everal days, and the race-trains are wofully dusty So are the Kings County roads and the queens County roads. So is the track at Aqueduct, are the buildings at Aqueduct. Turf fanatics who go constantly to the races suffer many disfrom dust and dirt in the course of a Trains are often dirty. The starting is It was dusty yesterday. It usually dusty at Aqueduct and at other tracks in this Much of the bookmaking, much of the riding, and much of the racing were dusty. Ancient Hercules turned two rivers into the Augean stables and washed them out. The rivers were little ones little Peneus and the little Alpheus-but they did the job. Were a new Hercules to arise he might turn the Mississippi and the Missouri, Amazon and the Congo, the Nile and the Niger, in one stupendous deluge upon the Ameriand the united floods of them all could not wash it clean first race yesterday Premier, a sour rogue f a horse, spoiled an otherwise perfect start. Afer a long delay a poor start was made. The entries of Premier, Imperator, San Mateo and other our rogues ought to be refused on every track. How little sense and judgment are shown in the management of turf affairs! Why are the Pre-Imperators, San Mateos and other sour rogues permitted to spoil sport?

The race was taken by Mazarine, well backed by crazily-plunged-on favorite Tyrshena got off poor-

Pupil carried only 115 pounds, however, while Peaceful fouled the favorite badly. Morgan, the half-Indian, rode Peaceful. He made no complaint of foul. His failure to make a complaint may have been due to the fact that he made a complaint of foul earlier in the week and was overruled.

Both the first and second races were queer affairs and costly to the majority of persons who went to the track to bet. And who could ever be tempted to go to Aqueduct for any other purpose save to Pittsburg Phil" had ill-luck at Aqueduct as rule up to yesterday. He backed Harry Reed and other losers on the first day, and on later dates he speculated on Imperator and San Mateo, both of whom were left at the post. But he backed Pupil at a good price and won handsomely.

Michael Clancy's Maximo Gomez was the choice of most of the moderate bettors in the third race, out the "smart" division backed Blueaway freely The "smart" division was right. Maximo Gomez crawled as if he had been stricken with paraplegia and locomotor ataxia, while Blueaway sped. Maximo Gomez was unplaced. The "right" money was on Blueaway, and the "right" money is frequently a potent stimulant of speed. The Indian lockey Morgan rode Maximo Gomez, and did not irequently a potent stimulant of speed. The Indian jockey Morgan rode Maximo Gomez, and did not ride him nearly as well as Spencer has been riding M. G. this year.

Frank Regan and Colonel Daniels are hopeful men. Sometimes they are too hopeful. Their colt sire Florian ran fairly at New-Orieans against some of the slowest curs that ever crept and crawled over a poolroom track. Therefore the estimable Colonel Daniels hoped that Sir Florian would win races at Aqueduct. So they added Sir Florian to the Arverne Stakes, the fourth race. But Sir Florian ran in the Arverne Stakes as he has run before at Aqueduct. He ran as if he were the son of a mongrel mule and not the son of the famous one-eyed racer St. Florian. Mr. Regan and Colonel Daniels ought to give their many friends a long rest from Sir Florian. That speedless creature ought to be sent back to New-Orleans and kept there until the poolroom meeting for mud-turties next winter. Sir Florian is all right at New-Orleans But he is too slow to be of any carthly use friends of Mr. Regan and Colonel Daniels, to break enrich the bookmakers.

Marcus, Daly's Tamor, odds-on favorite for the Arverne Stakes, took the prize. Dr. Parker, an added starter, was second, and Roysterer was third. added starter, was second, and Roysterer was third. Boney Boy ran poorly, and Sir Florian ran worse.

Walter Keyes has bought the filly The Amazon from A. H. & D. H. Morris. The price is reported to be $1,280. The Amazon was the odds-on favorite in the fifth race, and she was an easy first. Edward Kelly's filly Albonita (Gadzooks, what a name') was second to The Amazon. Albonita is one of the very small and select number of daughters of Adolph Nelson's superb and stately stallion Potentate, who was nearly starved to death on Oden Bowie's Maryland farm a few years ago. Mr. Nelson has never forgiven Mr. Rowie for feeding Potentate on a frugal diet of chopped straw and mint Juleps. Mr. Nelson was at Aqueduct, looking as handsome and dignified as the handsomest and most dignified of all the Doges in the history of the Venetian Republic in its noblest days. Mr. Nelson has regained his health, and is as sturdy and robust and vigorous as Samson was before the Phillistines caught him.

Edward Kelly ought to have been present to see his filly run. It is a matter for regret that Mr. Kelly has lost his interest in turf affairs so largely in recent years. In the days of the prosperity of the celebrated Madison Stable Mr. Kelly was one of the most influential turfmen in the country. If he would now take an active, extensive and energetic part in racing he would be of conspicuous benefit to the highest interests of true sport. O'Connor's riding of Ortrud in the fifth race was werd and fantastical in the extreme. It would be a grievous pity to suspect dear little miniature bunch of beauty. Cherub O'Connor, of anything wrong, but that was a strangely curvillagar and eccentric ride. But then Cupid O'Connor was always capricious. Race-track cherubs and cupids are often capricious.

H. Martin's riding on Prince of Wales, an even-money favorite, and an added starter in the last face, was not in the least judicious or skilful. Was he desperately anxious to win the race? His riding for the same colt at the same distance on imaginabl perverse and painful was seen yesterday in that last race.

With its submerged area of Siberian cold, and with its many frozen races. Aqueduct is a quaint bit of territory. Did the Wise Man of Eld have Aqueduct in his eye when he wrote: "Vanitas vanitatum. Omnia vanitas."

WHAT COLUMBIA MEN ARE DOING ON LAND AND WATER.

Dr. Walter B. Peet took the Columbia 'varsity or Wednesday. He used the 35 shell. The water was rough, and this, with the change of shells and rig, brought out the weak points. The chief fault was the lagging of the boat between strokes, owing to the failure of the men to jump off quickly and a tendency to rush the slide. The stroke was raised last week to twenty-six.

The 'varsity squad is housed in the gymnasium building. The plan of training a second 'varsity crew has been dropped, as the expense of maintaining it last year proved to be far in excess of any good

The make-up of the boat has been changed by the withdrawal of Henderson, who was an ex-ceptionally promising oar. He belonged to the hockey team, which failed to comply with the faculty rule requiring a physical examination. Permission has been refused to all of its members to represent Columbia in any sport. The contest between Thomas, Mitchell and Maclay for bow seat is still on, and will not be settled for some time. although the last is supposed to have the poorest chance. At present the men row as follows: How, Mitchell, Thomas or Maclay; 2, Falconer; 3, Meyer; 4, Le Prince; 5, Nash; 6, MacKay (captain); Erdal; stroke, Lawrence, and coxswain, Bogue, On a recent two-mile row the men were timed by a Tribune reporter, and made the distance in 9 minates 40 seconds. Considering the fact that the race is two months off and that speed thus far has not been thought of, the time made is encouraging. The freshmen have not yet been divided into first and second boat. The Argyle Athletic Association, whose membership is almost entirely made up of Columbia students, will hold track games, open to students of schools and colleges, on May 12, at Herkeley Oval. At these games the Cornell and Columbia cycletams will compete in a dual meet. The contests will be three in number—a half-mile, a mile and an unlimited pursuit race. Individual cups will be presented to the winners.

In the theatre of the Knickerbocker Athletic Club an entertainment by the members of the Knickerbocker and the New-Jersey Athletic clubs will be given to-morrow night. The entertainment committees of both organizations have arranged an elaborate programme.

HARVARD BEATEN BY MANHATTAN.

An interesting game of baseball was played at Jasper Field in this city yesterday between the Harvard and the Manhattan College teams. Harvard and the Mathattan College teams. GOLF.

TUSROL LINKS.

A SCORE OF 14 TO 1 IN FAVOR OF THE HOMI PLAYERS-TOLER DEFEATS THE PRINCE-

TON CAPTAIN BY THREE HOLES.

The Princeton golfers received a hard drubbing resterday at the hands of the Baltusrol golf team. The match was played on the Baltusrol links, and seven men figured on a side. It was something of an ordeal for the college boys, as none of them had been over the course this season, and at this time of year, when greens are rough and the ground uneven, the man who knows the little humps and hillocks is usually the man who wins. The Princeton seven played a fast and plucky game, and at one time it looked as though they would be successful, but in the finish most of them lost the advantage they had gained at the outset, and the final score was 14 to 1 in Baltusrol's favor. From a golfing point of view, or any other point of view, for that matter, the day was perfect-not oo cool to call for sweaters, and yet cool enough to make one's blood tingle from exercise. With the college boys in the sort of togs only college boys can wear, and the onlookers in their scarlet coats and tweeds, the scene was a pretty one. The clubhouse was gay with crowds from the surrounding cottages, and perhaps the lionizing which the Princeton boys got after the match was over may have wiped out the sting of defeat. At any rate, they arranged for another match later in the spring, when they will try to retrieve themselves for vesterday's showing.

H. P. Toler was the first man on the Baltusrol side to score. He was paired with Chester Griswold, jr., the Princeton captain, whom he beat by holes. Starting out the first two holes were halved in 6 and 5, respectively. Then Griswold took the third in a perfect 3, but lost the next on poor putting. In fact, the match was lost and won on the greens, for the Princeton players held their own on the long strokes, and had they used their putters as cleverly as they did their drivers the match might have had a different5 ending. The winter greens were used throughout, as the club is nursing its summer greens for the big open tournament, to be held there in June. Toler rounded the ninth green 2 holes in the lead, and though Griswold made him play up to his best form the match ended with Toler 3 up. The cards were:

Toler Griswold -Toler ----Griswold -Meanwhile Tyng had been having a hot match with Stuart, one of the best of the Princeton men, and at the eleventh hole he was 4 down. But Tyng is usually at his best in an uphill fight, and be the round was finished he not only closed up this big gap, but won the last hole, and so added another point to the Baltusrol score. In going for the eighth hole Tyng hit a tree at the side of the course with a resounding whack, but luckily the ball bounded back into the course, instead of inte the woods. But it was not luck of this sort that gave him his victory, for on the latter holes he earned every stroke by good golf. The cards were

Stuart's 29 for the first nine holes indicates the kind of game Tyng had to meet, and the fact that he did it successfully seemed to discourage the other Princeton men, for with the exception of Cooke none of them scored a point. Cooke was pack took the trail. The chase then led across the paired with Hugh Toler, and his one point was all country seats of William C. Whitney and Thomas that saved his side from total whitewash. Vander- Hitchcock, jr., to the Griswold place, at East that saved his side from total whitevasis, and pool, who is not usually with the Baltusrol to defeated Murphey, of Princeton, by three he while L. P. Bayard, jr., who himself played on Princeton team two years ago, took his match. Douglas Bonner by 1 up. W. A. Larned, who pises to make almost as much of a success at as he made at tennis, added two more points to Baltusrol score by defeating Stockley, and C. Hamilton finished the contest by defeating J. P. tice Kellogg by 4 up. The summary:
